Complainant wanted a welfare check on her teenaged son who was threatening suicide. I made contact with her son at his grandparents house in Woodland Hills. He did acknowledge being depressed and threatened to kill himself after an argument with his girlfriend. He said it was a heat of the moment statement and he felt fine. He did not take steps towards suicide that night but did state he had taken steps about a month ago. I had him talk to a crisis worker over the phone while I there and the crisis worker advised me he did not think he needed to be admitted to the hospital involuntarily. The subjects grandmother was present during our interaction and she said she would keep an eye on him. I called the complainant and informed her of what transpired and she requested nothing further.

SYNOPSIS:

On March 11 2019, I responded to a possible fraud call. I made contact with the reporting party by phone. The reporting party stated he purchased an antique gun from an individual in California. A cashiers check was sent certified mail by the reporting party, and cashed by the seller of the gun in California. The reporting party never received the gun, and now the same individual is posting the same gun for sale again, this time listing his location as Virginia. I gathered all information from the reporting party including copies of all correspondence between the two, a copy of the cashed cashiers check, and a copy of the sellers California ID card. This case will be referred to our Detectives Division for further investigation.
